Naming this Wine List was a Spain in the Ass.

Spain is a place of history. Dating back somewhere between five to six thousand years on the Iberian Peninsula, wine has always been a part of the culture and practice of the Spanish people. The nation, once a conquering global superpower, now exists as one of the greatest export hubs of wine in the world. While being the most widely planted nation in the world, because of lower yielding vineyards Spain comes second behind Italy in volume production.

Interestingly, there are somewhere between four hundred and six hundred different grape varieties growing in the nation, yet most of the wine produced and exported comes from one of twenty different varieties.

The purpose and drive of this wine list was a desire to elaborate on the rich history and culture of wine in Spain while also exploring into the untamed, natural wilderness to find some fun, unique, and forgotten stories. This philosophy is also accompanied by a commitment to sustainability and biodynamic winemaking practice. Every wine that has been selected for this list is either certified organic, biodynamic, or practice sustainable farming in some way.

"I would like to be wine and drink myself"

-Federico Garcia Lorca
